

This document cites a website [1, example.com]. Another reference points to [2, wikipedia.org] using `\citeurl{https://wikipedia.org/wiki/LaTeX}`. You can also cite the same URL again [1, example.com] to see deduplication in action.

Then we list all cited URLs using `\showcitedurls`:

Cited URLs

The enumeration correspond to the citations in the text.<sup>1</sup>

1. `https://example.coma, b`
2. `https://wikipedia.org/wiki/LaTeX`

<sup>1</sup>This is a nonstandard citation style chosen for convenience. It allows quick referencing without the overhead of managing a `.bib` file, which can be cumbersome and time-consuming in this context.
